Chaozhou Blue and White Porcelain Intangible Cultural Heritage Inheritor

The company is dedicated to protecting, preserving, and developing the traditional Chaozhou blue and white porcelain craftsmanship to ensure its continuation and promotion. Under the leadership of Master Artisan and General Manager Xu Ruisheng, the company enhances employees' skills through research, learning, and practice of blue and white porcelain intangible cultural heritage techniques, cultivating a new generation of inheritors to ensure this precious cultural heritage is passed down and promoted.

Chaozhou Blue and White Porcelain Intangible Cultural Heritage Base

Establishing the Blue and White Porcelain Inheritance Base aims to better promote Chaozhou blue and white porcelain craftsmanship and enhance public understanding and appreciation of it. At this base, we offer a range of activities, including teacher-led instruction, ceramic experiences, porcelain displays, and cultural exhibitions. The base serves as a comprehensive platform integrating teaching, experience, display, and communication. Additionally, the company collaborates with various universities, such as creating an off-campus teaching practice base with Guangzhou Academy of Fine Arts and an innovation and entrepreneurship off-campus base with Shantou University. This collaboration actively promotes Chaozhou's traditional blue and white porcelain firing techniques and cultivates ceramic talents that blend traditional and modern craftsmanship.

QUALITY CONTROL

01

Incoming Inspection

Before production, ceramic raw materials undergo strict quality checks to ensure they meet standards, including the purity of clay, the composition of glazes, and the quality of additives. This is essential for ensuring the final product's quality.

02

Manufacturing Process Inspection

Throughout production, including molding, firing, and glaze painting, process control and quality inspection ensure each step meets the expected standards, such as dimensional accuracy, firing temperature control, and glaze shine.

03

Inspection Before Delivery

After production, final inspections of ceramic products include appearance checks, dimensional measurements, and functionality tests (such as heat resistance and impact resistance) to ensure they meet customer requirements and industry standards before being released for sale.
